

SUICIDE OF WESTERN MAN.

Elijah Taylor Found in Bed With Throat Cut—William Fowler Badly Scalded—News from the Courts—Cycle Club's Banquet—D. A. R. Chapter Votes $50 to City Missionary.

Since the formation of the Western Narrow Fabric company there is local interest in all that pertains to the product of the proposed new industry. Just as the Western company is planning for the manufacture of narrow fabrics by the very latest process, comes report from Rockland, Mass., to the effect that a movement to merge all the manufacturers of narrow fabrics in the United States is under way.

The promoters are said to have some of the larger manufacturers with them, but many of the smaller concerns are not in favor of the movement, fearing that if a combine is formed the small factories will suspend operations.

Elijah Taylor ended his life by a self-inflicted wound at his home, in Mechanic street, late Thursday night. After about eighteen months of continual despondency, he was for a number of years employed as a machinist at the C. B. Cottrell Sons' plant, but by reason of sickness, caused by excessive drinking, he left that employment and since that time has done but little work, and became a burden rather than a help to his wife and children. His son, Arthur, died about two months ago, and he seemed more depressed than usual since then, and endeavored to drown his sorrow by increasing his desire for strong drink.

Mr. Taylor was about the streets of Western, Thursday, as usual, and it is said that during the day and evening he drank two bottles of Haverhill No. 15, diluted in water, as a substitute for whiskey, as of late he had difficulty in getting whiskey in no-license Western, as he was an unlicensed visitor in places where liquor is obtainable by the initiated. When he reached home he was in a drunken condition, and special attention was taken of his condition by his wife, who was very much alarmed in his actions to arouse suspicion of his family. During the night Mr. Taylor heard unusual noises in her husband's room, and she went there to investigate and to render what assistance she could to her husband, supposing that he had a sudden attack of illness. When she entered the room she was horrified to find Mr. Taylor lying in bed with blood flowing from a wound in his throat, self-inflicted with a carving knife.

Mrs. Taylor aroused the members of the family, and offered William H. Casey summoned Drs. Payne and Payer, but their efforts to save the life of Mr. Taylor were unavailing, and he died within half an hour after he had cut his throat.

Dr. George D. Stanton, medical examiner of the town of Scitucket, viewed the body Friday morning. His opinion was suicide, committed while depressed by an unbalanced mind.

Before Mr. Taylor yielded to the drink habit he was a good husband and father, and his friends mourn his downfall and untimely end. He was a member of the Sons of St. George, and carried a life insurance policy for a small amount. He is survived by Mr. Taylor, a son and two daughters, who have the sympathy of many friends.

William Fowler, employed in the lunch cart near the bridge, had a narrow escape from serious injury and death, Thursday night. He was scalded by a pot of coffee from a local society that had a supper in a nearby hall, and intended to make the coffee in a ten gallon milk can. After putting the boiling water in the can, he added the coffee, placed the big wooden plug in the mouth of the can, and then placed the can on the stove for the contents to boil.

And he did, with no vent for the confined steam. When the can began to show signs of eruption, Mr. Fowler struck the plug, to unloosen it. Immediately the plug was forced out by the escaping steam, and with it came a torrent of boiling coffee. Mr. Fowler was severely scalded on the left arm and forearm and in groping for the door, to escape from the cart, he thrust his left hand through a pane of glass, cutting his hand and two fingers severely.

He was attended by Dr. Scanlon. Mr. Fowler suffered considerable pain, but his injuries are not of the character that will confine him to his home.

In the Third district court Friday, Judge Oliver H. Williams, the continued case of John Corcoran, charged with an assault upon John Curio, was disposed of, and without the testimony of the complainant, who has gone to parts unknown, Corcoran was found guilty, and ordered to pay a fine of $5 and costs, which by reason of several convictions reached $20. This added to the sum previously said to have been paid by Corcoran to Curio in settlement of the case, as he supposed, will diminish Mr. Corcoran's bank account about $100.

The liquor cases against Oliver B. Gavitt, Edward Gilroy and Charles Clayton, with all other cases on the docket, were continued for one week.

Grand Exalted Order Knight J. D. Shea of Springfield, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, was in Western Friday investigating a matter of special interest to Western lodge No. 143. It is said that the investigation is with reference to the appointment of a deputy for this district.

The Western Cycle club enjoyed the 14th annual banquet Friday night. There were about 100 guests at the club rooms from 8 to 10 o'clock, and then the members and their guests made a short street parade, headed by the Cyclops, and followed by a band of music. Where the banquet was served. After the banquet the entire party, numbering over a hundred, returned to the club rooms, where the festivities were continued.

Mrs. Kate Davy, who resides in the basement of the Dr. Scitucket house, was in danger of losing her life Thursday night, but for the timely discovery of a fire in the basement by Mrs. Scitucket. Mrs. Davy, after attending to the furnace fire, retired, and about an hour thereafter Mrs. Scitucket detected smoke in the house, and made an investigation. She found the floor near the furnace ablaze and the fire creeping up the wall. The application of several pails of water extinguished the flames, before serious damage resulted. Mrs. Davy was found in her room asleep and nearly suffocated by smoke.

In the superior court at Kingston on Friday an absolute divorce was granted to Mrs. Byron D. H. Scitucket, and non-support. Fred N. Robinson was divorced from Esther Robinson on the ground of desertion with positive refusal to return.

The counsel in the case of Joseph S. Scitucket, Esq., and the case was on book account, stated that the case was in course of settlement and that therefore no trial would be necessary.

At the regular meeting of Phebe Greene Ward chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Mrs. LaClede Woodhouse was elected in lieu of Mrs. Charles L. Gates, who has retired to Boston. Mrs. Samuel H. Davis was chosen a member of the board of management. The sum of $50 was voted City Missionary Alexander Smith to assist him in his work among the poor and destitute. Announcement was made by the entertainment committee that there would be what next week.

These exercises culminated the meeting: Singing of the Star Spangled Banner, by Mrs. A. A. Robinson; reading of the prayer by the winner, Aubrey Maddock, Clauses Leading to the Revolution; poem, Penelope's Christmas Dance, by Miss Genevieve Burdick; paper on William H. Taft, by Mrs. S. H. Davis, and the singing of America. The meeting was held at the residence of Mrs. Elizabeth C. Burdick. Tea and a social hour followed.

Local Laconia. Mrs. Asa S. Briggs died Friday at her home in Ashaway in her 82d year. Representative Langworthy of Western has presented a petition for local option in taxation.

Government inspectors visited Western during the week and discovered cases where adulterated margarine was offered for sale as creamery butter. At the session in Western it was voted to hold the annual convention of the Fourth District Rhode Island Woman's Christian Temperance union with the Carolina union, next June.

The individual scores were: Kiddier 24, Judson 29, Ackerman 100, Ackerman 102, in the morning. In the afternoon Ackerman defeated Judson and Kiddier triumphed over Ackerman.

WHAT THE PAPERS SAY. February Impressions.

For once the common impression as to the temperature of a month seems to be about right. Most people felt that February was warmer than usual, and now that the records begin to be printed it appears that the temperature was somewhere about six degrees above the unusually wet but as a rule the indefinite general recollection people have of a month or a whole season depends more on whether it was generally clear and pleasant or chilly and disagreeable than on temperature records. Those who have tested their impressions against the record have found some queer discrepancies.—Hartford Times.

Roosevelt's Quickness. Mr. Taft's testimony that Mr. Roosevelt is the quickest man he ever knew to acknowledge a mistake and "reverse himself" will astonish those who have thought him too self-assured to admit the possibility of error. Mr. Taft, however, is a competent judge. Mr. Roosevelt's habit of coming back promptly at his critics is responsible for the belief that he was impatient of criticism and intolerant of disagreement. Those who know him best always say that though he fights hard, he has no sense of wounded pride and resentment such as a man who suffers silently might have. He relieves his feelings and then forgets it.—Waterbury American.

Why Foam is White. "How white the foam is," said the pretty girl, in a voice muffled by the sable stole drawn across her red mouth. "Yet the sea is green. Why, then, isn't the foam green?"

The young sophomore laughed in derision. "Gee, you are ignorant!" he said. "Beer is brown, but its foam is white, too. Shake up black ink and you get white foam. Shake up red ink and the result is the same. A body that reflects all the light it receives, without absorbing any, is always white. All bodies powdered into tiny diamond form, so that they throw back the light from many facets, instead of reflecting it as a whole, are white. Any foam is water powdered into these small diamonds, and hence its whiteness."—New York Press.

A New Member Coming. On Friday, March 5, a new paper is to be issued at Greenwich, Conn., named the Investigator. It will look like things, as its name indicates, and turn the limelight upon the doings of the town. W. A. White, for long manager of the Investigator, will be the editor, and his experience and ability guarantee at the start a lively and well conducted journal.—Bridgeport Standard.

Lincoln's Safety Valve of Humor. Lincoln's rare sense of humor has very properly been called his safety valve. Without this it is inconceivable how any human soul could have borne the great load of responsibility which he conscientiously assumed. His gift of wit was but another side of the great character that has endeared himself to all of us. Senator Charles Sumner of Massachusetts called at the White House early one morning. He was told that the president was downstairs; that he could go right down. He found the president polishing his boots. Some what amazed, Senator Sumner said: "Why, Mr. President, do you black your own boots?" With a vigorous rub of the brush the president replied: "Whose boots do you think I'd black?"

BELA L. PRATT. Designed Statue, Replica of Which Has Been Presented State.

A beautiful statue of the Young America, designed by Bela Lyon Pratt, which was put up by the state of Connecticut at Andersonville, has been much admired by all who have seen it. Col. Frank W. Cheney of South Manchester has had a replica made of it, in bronze, at his own expense—an exact reproduction of the original statue—and one Wednesday he made a formal presentation of it to the state, through the sculpture commission, to be put up on the capitol grounds. It was unanimously voted by the commission to recommend the acceptance by the state of the gift. Colonel Cheney also offered, through the commission, to meet the expenses of a suitable pedestal.

It was voted that the secretary of the commission prepare a suitable petition, with resolution attached, to the general assembly, praying for the acceptance by the state of such gift of Colonel Cheney, as far as the replica is concerned, and requesting an appropriation of $2,000, in order to meet the expenses of a proper pedestal and the erection of the memorial on the capitol grounds.

Heavy Work at Hand. President-elect Taft is to be made a Mason on sight, and now a serious question has arisen as to whether the Cincinnati lodge will use an elephant in the initiation or give the regular grade a course in physical culture.—Philadelphia Telegraph.
